

Columbia Theological Seminary

Visitors to Class Policy

The following policy was approved by the faculty on Feb 4, 2016:

Columbia Theological Seminary welcomes visitors to class for a one-time visit with prior approval from the instructor. Students registered for the class should contact the instructor in advance to request permission for the visitor's attendance. Some classes may not be suitable for the presence of a visitor.

A visitor who wishes to attend a particular class more than once must have permission from the Office of Academic Affairs.